JUVENILE GRANGE MEMBERS HAVE CHRISTMAS PARTY

The regular meeting of the Mattapoisett Juvenile Grange was omitted Friday night. The members went carol singing with the Mattapoisett Nursing Home on North Street their last stop, before going to the home of the matron, Mrs. Helmuth Heuberger, Jr., North Street, for their Christmas party. They were accompanied by Mrs. Dorothy Harris and Mrs. Dorothy Silva, the assistant matron.

At the party games were played, with Christmas carol music in the air, in the decorated basement of Mrs. Heuberger's home. Hot chocolate, Christmas ice cream and cookies were served by the matron. Gifts were exchanged upstairs around the Christmas tree with the worthy master, Barry Denham, as Santa Claus.

Needless to say, this was a very happy party. The next meeting, January 5th, will be an Educational Aid program with Joanne and Susan Silva in charge of refreshments.

An annual census of the Town of Rochester will be conducted during the month of January. Census takers are Gladys Mello, Edwin Kucharski and Arthur Lionberger. Each is a member of the Board of Registrars.

GRANGE MEETING

Mattapoisett Grange held its bi-monthly meeting Thursday night with the master, Mildred LeBaron, presiding.

A report was given by Marion Hatton, chairman of the Home and Community Service Committee. A Christmas party for this committee was held at Mrs. Hatton's home. Aprons were on sale on her table to benefit the Committee's treasury.

Ruby Barber, Flora of the Grange, reported on her visit and taking a good cheer basket to Mrs. Bertha Tripp of Green Pastures Nursing Home. She also reported on calls she will be making during the week-end to other Grange shut-ins.

A report on farms was given by Otto Kellish, chairman of the Agriculture committee.

During a short recess Barry Denham, master of the Juvenile Grange, was escorted to the master's station. A sum of $33.50 was presented to the Grange by him to be used towards the plumbing expense. The money was earned by the Juvenile Grange members selling Christmas cards and wrappings.

Also during the business meeting a report of a card party was given by Ada Furtado. The next Monday night card party will be held January 8th.

VISITOR TO MATTAPOISETT

Chauncey L. Shaw visited his mother, Mrs. Roland C. Shaw, at her home on Church Street, Mattapoisett over the Christmas holidays. Now known as Brother John, he is a novice postulant at The Society of St. Paul in Greshham, Oregon. He dropped into the Presto Office last Tuesday as we were printing the New Year issue. He was greatly interested in the printing process as he is now working in the printing office at the monastery where he operates a letter press. Since he will soon learn offset printing of the type used to print the paper, he stayed around to see the work in progress. He will be learning to run a multilith press.

He said that the Episcopal monastery in Oregon is in beautiful surroundings since Mount Hood overlooks the area. Strangely enough the temperature there is very mild and he said that only rarely do the men have to wear more than their suitcoats at this time of year. He felt the damp cold in Mattapoisett very keenly, since this is his first visit here in 18 months.

Brother John hopes to become a monk and is preparing himself to become a missionary in the former German colonies of Africa.

Up to the present time the Church of England has maintained missionary workers in this section but final preparations are being made for the opening of an American branch house, St. Peter's Priory in Windhock, South West Africa.

Brother John is now studying the language and various dialects of the natives to prepare for this work and said that the language is tough to learn.

Before joining the St. Paul Order, Brother John was a counselor with the St. Francis Boys' Home in Salina, Kansas. He graduated from New Bedford Vocational High School.

HOME ON LEAVE

Pvt. Harold W. Crapo, Jr. is home on a ten day leave from Fort Dix, New Jersey. He is the son of Mrs. Harold Crapo, County Road, Mattapoisett.

OTHERS SEE CARDINAL

Several other Mattapoisett residents have also seen the red cardinal visiting their bird feeders. They are Mrs. Clara Perkins, Mrs. Ted Perkins, Mrs. Ruth Heath, Mrs. Lorraine Bryant and Mrs. Mildred Jason.

Principal speaker at the luncheon will be James G. Bennett, Travel Development Coordinator for the petroleum institute. Gov. Wesley G. Powell of New Hampshire, chairman of the New England Governor's Conference, will extend invitations to the luncheon. The New England Governor's Conference has unanimously endorsed "Heritage Trail".

"Heritage Trail" is a highway trail through all six New England states embracing more than 1,000 historic, cultural, recreational and scenic sites. It was drawn up by the New England Hotel Association with the aid of the New England Council, the regional auto clubs and the recreational development directors of the six states.

Approximately 100 business and civic leaders attending the luncheon will be invited to join a "Heritage Trail" Committee to help in the long range development of the trail which has been termed "The most outstanding tourist promotion effort in the past 50 years."

The luncheon will be held at noon at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel in Boston. Guests will be given colonial tri-cornered hats as symbols of their "Heritage Trail" Committee membership.

LIVING WITH YOUR HEART - SKIING

Skiing is a delightful sport, performed in the cold out-of-doors in hilly or mountainous regions. With ski tows, skiing involves essentially no effort going uphill; coming downhill, one simply coasts all the way. It might appear then that there would be no strain on the heart or circulation. There are certain problems confronting the skier which make skiing something more than passive.

The amount of exertion involved in skiing is variable, and depends on whether or not it is done competitively, on the skill of the skier, on the condition of the snow and steepness of the hill, and finally on altitude.

There are several types of competitive skiing: cross-country, downhill, slalom, jumping. In cross-country racing, the international distances are 10 miles and 31 miles. Downhill races may be anywhere from one-half mile to 3 or 4 miles or more in length, depending on the terrain. Speeds of over 50 miles per hour are often attained; Ralph Miller (U.S.A.) was clocked at a speed of 109 miles an hour in Chile.

In slalom racing, the skier follows a precise downhill course defined by flags in pairs. His constant changing of direction demands a precise technique. It is a short but vigorous race, wherein the vertical drop is usually not more than about 600 feet. In ski jumping, the skier crouches as he descends, springs into the air at take-off, leans far forward and lands on the steep slope with a slight give to his knees, and comes to a stop where the hill levels out at the bottom. Jumps of over 450 feet have been recorded.

It might be thought that non-competitive skiing would be less laborious. Actually, it really is not, because one of the joys of skiing is to go as fast as one's technique will allow and to go down as steep a hill as is compatible with survival. The amount of energy expended descending a given hill may be relatively small for the expert skier. In this case, he usually goes to another hill that will challenge his capabilities.

The condition of the snow may make skiing relatively easy or difficult. The character of the terrain also influences the amount of exertion required. Trail skiing on a hard-packed surface is very different from a down-hill run on a mountainside where the snow is a deep powder.

Finally, the altitude of the ski slope has much to do with the work of the heart and lungs. Ski slopes may be only a few hundred feet above sea level or as high as 10,000 feet or more. Anyone who has climbed a few thousand feet above the height to which he is accustomed develops shortness of breath on exertion and a variety of other symptoms not related to the heart or circulation. Thus the problem of altitude must be born in mind. Like pregnancy, it represents a stress of unknown and unpredictable magnitude.
